TO KNOW

SAM NEWHOUSE, REPORTER

Bill Cosby's fall from grace was completed Tuesday after the former "America's Dad," revealed in recent years to be a serial molester who drugged and assaulted dozens of women, was sentenced to three to 10 years in jail and deemed a "sexually violent predator" in relation to a 2004 sexual assault and immediately remanded into the custody of the Sheriff's Department. While Cosby supporters bashed the verdict, it was a moment of vindication for victim Andrea Constand and the more than 60 women who have accused Cosby of sexual misconduct. WELCOME TO
METRO.USPOPE: CHURCH 'SPARED NO
EFFORT' TO FIGHT ABUSE

Pope Francis, facing clergy sex-abuse scandals in several countries, said on Tuesday that the Roman Catholic Church has "spared no effort" to tackle the problem in recent years. But, speaking to reporters aboard the papal plane while returning from a four-day trip to the Baltics, the pope again appeared to indirectly acknowledge that the Church had hidden sexual abuse "in the past century," saying that such cover-ups had been common in families as well. Francis referred to a damning report last August by a U.S. grand jury on sexual abuse of children by priests in Pennsylvania over a 70-year period. He noted that the incidents of abuse diminished toward the end of the years covered in the report. "In more recent times the number went down because the Church realized that it had to fight in a different way," he said. "In olden times, these things were covered up, they were even covered up in homes, when an uncle raped a niece, when a father raped his children. It was covered up because it was an enormous shame. That was the mentality in the last century," he said.

GOOGLE TO ACKNOWLEDGE PRIVACY MISTAKES

Leading internet search engine Google will acknowledge that it has made "mistakes" on privacy issues in testimony an executive of the Alphabet Inc. unit will deliver to a U.S. Senate committee on Wednesday, according to a document reviewed by Reuters. "We acknowledge that we have made mistakes in the past, from which we have learned, and improved our robust privacy program," Google Chief Privacy Officer Keith Enright will say in written testimony before the Senate Commerce Committee. Google will testify alongside AT&T Inc., Amazon.com Inc., Apple Inc., and other companies amid growing concerns about data privacy. Google's written testimony did not identify specific prior mistakes but the company has come under fire for privacy issues. In 2012, Google agreed to pay a then-record $22.5 million civil penalty to settle Federal Trade Commission charges that it misrepresented to Apple Safari internet browser users that it would not place tracking "cookies" or serve them targeted ads.

EX-NSA AGENT SENTENCED FOR EXPOSING SECRETS

A former U.S. National Security Agency employee was sentenced in a federal court in Baltimore on Tuesday to 5½ years in prison, after pleading guilty last December to illegally taking classified information outside the spy agency, the U.S. Justice Department said. Nghia Hoang Pho, 68, of Ellicott City, Maryland, removed documents that contained classified national defense information and kept them at his home without authorization, the department said in a statement. Pho will also be required to undergo three years of supervised release after completing his prison sentence. Pho worked in the NSA's elite hacking unit and he removed what prosecutors described as "massive troves" of highly classified documents containing top-secret national defense information between 2010 and March 2015. A U.S. intelligence official previously has said on the condition of anonymity that Pho was the same NSA employee who had been identified in media reports for using Kaspersky Lab antivirus software on his home computer.

MARILYN MONROE'S 1956
ROADSTER UP FOR AUCTION

A two-seater convertible car owned by Marilyn Monroe is going up for auction in November and could fetch up to $500,000, organizers said on Tuesday. The 1956 raven-black Ford Thunderbird, owned by the movie star for six years until shortly before her death in 1962, is being auctioned for the first time. Monroe, one of the most collectible celebrities, was pictured driving in the car with her husband, playwright Arthur Miller, shortly after their June 1956 wedding. Darren Julien, president of Julien's Auctions, said the car was "not only part of automotive history but comes with an aura of glamor, romance and tragedy of a true Hollywood legend." Monroe gifted the Thunderbird to the son of her acting coach, Lee Strasberg, in 1962. The current owner, who wishes to remain anonymous, tracked the vehicle down through registration and other documents that were sold in 2016 as part of Strasberg's estate. The car has undergone restoration but retains many original parts. "Finding this car, a classic two-seater model, after 56 plus years of its unknown whereabouts, was a singular event, the current owner said in a statement.

An exclusive look inside Brooklyn's iconic Domino Sugar refinery

As construction gets underway, Metro takes you inside Brooklyn's Domino Sugar refinery and fills you in on what's next for the historic landmark.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
nikki.mascali@metro.us

Before it ceased operations in 2004, the Domino Sugar refinery on the Brooklyn waterfront was, for more than a century, the lifeblood of the Williamsburg community.

"It was a good place for a lot of people because they spent their life here. If you had a job here, you were making it," Al Henriquez, site manager for developer Two Trees Management, told Metro as he whisked us up an exterior elevator to the refinery's rooftop.

For the past seven years, the Brooklyn native has lived, breathed and even dreamed about the Domino Sugar refinery redevelopment project, making him the perfect guide for a top-to-bottom — and sometimes scary for this writer who is afraid of heights — tour of the hulking brick building.

"No one knew" the magnitude of the project, Henriquez said, which was a deconstruction of the Domino Sugar refinery, not a demolition due to its landmark status. That means the permanent walls had to stay put, and Henriquez and crew spent two years breaking down literal tons of sugar-making machinery that spanned several stories by hand as "it was basically a machine wrapped in brick. The structure within the four walls was built around the equipment," he said.

"It's an incredible and very unique construction process so far," added David Lombino, Two Trees' managing director of external affairs.

"It's kind of like building a mini ship inside a glass bottle because you're doing everything within the very strict confines of the existing façade."

Some of the equipment salvaged from the factory can be seen as a permanent installation throughout Domino Park, which opened this past summer to give this historic section of Williamsburg its first waterfront access.

Two Trees' transformation of the former Domino Sugar refinery site features 11 mixed-use acres. Its first residential building, 325 Kent, opened last fall, and a second, 260 Kent, will open next year. The complex will eventually include one more residential building, and the factory itself will be redeveloped into 400,000 square feet of commercial space.

Henriquez and his crew are currently fortifying the refinery's foundation before the building-within-a-building is constructed.

"It'll take a couple years. I don't think we have a set date, but it's "... creating commercial space where people are going to be able to work again is super important for the development of this community."

Al Henriquez

hard to see anything happening there before 2021 at the earliest," Lombino said.

As Two Trees is "not actively marketing" the space, "it's too early" to discuss potential tenants, he added. While the upper floors will be office space, the ground floor of the Domino Sugar refinery will be open to the public and house restrooms for Domino Park as well as retail space and a courtyard.

Being able to convert the Domino Sugar refinery into this mixed-use space "gives back public space, gives the community access to the waterfront, which was never the case, and creating commercial space where people are going to be able to work again is super important for the development of this community," said Henriquez, who remembers sugar from the factory dusting cars in the neighborhood.

When work eventually ends, Henriquez will have spent more than a decade at the Domino Sugar refinery site and is "going to go sell coconuts on a beach," he said with a laugh.

Visit metro.us to see our video tour inside the Domino Sugar refinery, where sugar still actually wafts through the air and you can see pools of molasses easily mistaken for oil slicks and remnants of lamb bone char once used to bleach and filter the cane sugar still dusting the floor.

Trump praises North Korea's Kim but says sanctions must stay for now President Donald Trump praised North Korea's leader Kim Jong Un on Tuesday for his courage in taking steps to disarm, but said much work still had to be done and sanctions must remain in place on North Korea until it denuclearizes.

"The missiles and rockets are no longer flying in every direction, nuclear testing has stopped, some military facilities are already being dismantled," Trump said in his speech to the annual United Nations General Assembly.

"I would like to thank Chairman Kim for his courage and for the steps he has taken, though much work remains to be done," Trump said. "The sanctions will stay in place until denuclearization occurs."

Trump's remarks on North Korea were dramatically different from those in his speech last year at the U.N. assembly, when he threatened to "totally destroy" North Korea and mocked the North Korean leader as "Rocket Man" on a "suicide mission."

Trump held an unprecedented summit with Kim in Singapore in June which yielded a broad pledge by Kim to "work towards" denuclearization of the Korean peninsula.

However, Kim's commitments and actions so far have fallen far short of Washington's demands for a complete inventory of North Korea's weapons programs and irreversible steps to give up a nuclear arsenal that threatens the United States.

Trump has nevertheless heaped personal praise on Kim and expressed enthusiasm for a second summit.

On Monday, he said he expected this to be announced "pretty soon" but that the location had yet to be determined.

During a meeting with South Korean President Moon Jae-in at the United Nations on Monday, Trump said Kim has been "really very open and terrific, frankly."

"I think he wants to see something happen."

Trump singled out Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, Moon and Chinese President Xi Jinping for their support over North Korea, in spite of some questions about the commitment of the latter two leaders to maintaining tough sanctions on Pyongyang.

At a meeting last week with Moon, Kim promised to dismantle a missile site and also a nuclear complex if the United States took "corresponding action."

Moon told an event in New York on the sidelines of the U.N. meeting that declaring a formal end to the 1950-53 Korean War would encourage North Korea to move further with denuclearization.

Moon said Kim had told him the "corresponding measures" he was seeking were security guarantees Trump pledged in Singapore and moves toward normalization of relations with Washington.

"I believe that setting a timetable for all these measures is a task for the second U.S.-North Korea summit," Moon said.

U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said on Monday he hoped to travel to North Korea again before the end of the year to make final preparations for a second Trump-Kim summit.

Pompeo has proposed a meeting with North Korea Foreign Minister Ri Yong Ho at the General Assembly this week. U.S. ambassador to the United Nations Nikki Haley said last week the two had agreed to meet but that the meeting could take place later. REUTERS

‘America’s Dad’ Cosby sentenced to 3 to 10 years in prison

The disgraced entertainer was deemed a “sexually violent predator” by Judge Steven T. O’Neill.

sam.newhouse@metro.us

After a tumultuous legal battle, Bill Cosby was sentenced to state prison time on Tuesday for sexually assaulting Andrea Constand at his Cheltenham mansion in 2004, and was immediately remanded to custody.

Montgomery County Court of Common Pleas Judge Steven T. O’Neill handed down a three- to 10-year sentence after a two-day-long sentencing hearing at which he deemed Cosby, formerly considered “America’s Dad” as star of “The Cosby Show,” a “sexually violent predator.”

“It’s been 34 months since the complaint was brought. ... It is time for justice. The day has come. The time has come,” O’Neill said in handing down the sentence. “No one is above the law. No one should be treated disproportionately because of who they are, where they live or even their wealth, celebrity or philanthropy.”

O’Neill refused to grant Cosby bail or allow him to remain free on house arrest pending appeal, and instead ordered him to be immediately remanded to state custody, despite defense lawyers raising last-minute objections and appeals regarding evidence in Cosby’s case. After a final break to review the law, O’Neill rejected defense arguments and ordered Cosby into custody.

With his hands and feet shackled, holding a thin cane, Cosby was escorted out a back door of the courtroom and driven away in a black sport utility vehicle.

Cosby will first be detained in Eagleville at the Montgomery County Correctional Center, according to prosecutors. He will then be officially transferred into Pennsylvania Department of Correction custody at the State Correctional Institution in Phoenixville, the newest state prison, and from there the final state prison of his incarceration will be determined.

Montco DA Kevin Steele had argued for Cosby to get five to 10 years in prison, on the basis of the fact that Cosby used his celebrity to prey on women and had never shown remorse or apologized for his crimes.

At a press conference after the sentence was handed down, he rejected questions that Cosby as an African-American may have been treated unfairly by the system.

“This is no different than any other case. ... We simply follow the case where the evidence takes us and it doesn’t matter who they are,” Steele said. “When Judge [Eduardo] Robreno released the deposition and said that ‘this is perhaps criminal,’ we’re obligated to look at that, and we did.”

Defense lawyer Joseph Green contended at the hearing that Cosby is a frail old man at age 81 and now legally blind, and deserved leniency, possibly house arrest.

But O’Neill sided with prosecutors, sentencing Cosby to three to 10 years in prison.

to be placed in custody, before he was cuffed and escorted out.

"Mr. Cosby is doing great and Mr. Cosby knows that God is looking over him, and he knows that these are lies. They persecuted Jesus, and look what happened. Not saying Mr. Cosby is Jesus, but we know what this country has done to black men for centuries," Andrew Wyatt, Cosby's personal assistant and spokesman through his criminal trials, told media after Cosby was escorted into custody. "So Mr. Cosby is doing fine, he's holding up well, and anyone who wants to say anything negative, you're a joke as well, so thank you very much."

Also on Tuesday, Cosby was officially deemed a "sexually violent predator" by Judge O'Neill after two psychologists testified about his mental state.

Dr. Tim Foley testified

Judge Steven T. O'Neill that Cosby was unlikely to re-offend, saying few sex offenders commit new crimes after the age of 70. But O'Neill sided with a state psychologist, Dr. Kristen Dudley, who said that Cosby has a "mental abnormality," which she called a "paraphilic disorder," specifically, that he is attracted to "non-consenting women."

Cosby was also ordered to pay $25,000.

Some 60 women have accused Cosby of sexual assault over the past few decades, but he has only faced criminal charges in the Constand case.

Constand and her family also spoke on Monday at the hearing.

"Your honor, I have testified," Constand said in her statement. "I have given you my victim impact statement. The jury heard me. Mr. Cosby heard me. All I am asking for is justice as the court sees fit."

On Tuesday, prosecutors released a six-page written statement from Constand, in which she detailed the severe impact that followed her assault by Cosby.

"To truly understand the impact that sexual assault has had on my life, you have to understand the person that I was before it happened," Constand wrote. "When the sexual assault happened, I was a young woman brimming with confidence and looking forward to a future bright with possibilities. Now, almost 15 years later, I'm a middle-aged woman who's been stuck in a holding pattern for most of her adult life, unable to heal fully or to move forward."

Constand was a high school and college basketball star and played pro in Italy before taking a job at Temple as a director of operations for the women's basketball team. Assaulted by Cosby just before leaving her job at Temple, Constand wrote that back home in Canada, she experienced worse and worse psychological issues before reporting the molestation to police, one year after it happened.

"The nightmares started. I dreamed that another woman was being assaulted right in front of me and it was all my fault. ... I became more and more anxious that what had happened to me was going to happen to someone else. I grew terrified that it might already be too late, that the sexual assaults were continuing because I didn't speak out," Constand wrote, adding that reporting to police and the ensuing counterattacks by Cosby and his legal team led to "insurmountable stress and anxiety, which I still experience today."

"Now, more than 60 women have self-identified as sexual assault victims of Bill Cosby," she wrote. "We may never know the full extent of his double life as a sexual predator, but his decades-long reign of terror as a serial rapist is over."

A Basquiat musical is Broadway-bound

Jon Batiste, composer for the Basquiat musical, promises a “boundary-pushing masterpiece inspired by a true American original.”

Jean-Michel Basquiat died 30 years ago, but the iconic New York City artist is set to live again in the form of a Basquiat musical that is being developed for Broadway.

Based on the life and art of the artist, who died from a heroin overdose at age 27, the Basquiat musical will feature music and lyrics by Jon Batiste with Tony Award-winning director John Doyle at the helm.

The development team behind the Basquiat musical is working closely with his estate and have secured the rights to his artwork and personal archives.

While Basquiat's younger sisters Lisane and Jeanine Basquiat said they were approached several times over the years to bring their brother's story to the stage, talking to producers Alan and Barbara Marks piqued their interest.

“We understood that their approach to telling our brother's story treats his life, his art and his legacy with respect and passion,” they said in a joint statement. “We are thrilled with the possibilities. We cannot wait to begin the developmental process. Broadway is a new world for us, and we are looking forward to sharing our brother's life and art.”

Jon Batiste, composer for the Basquiat musical, hopes the audience will “leave this show inspired to create.”

“I want them to not only learn about Jean-Michel Basquiat, an innovator, but to also feel the visceral thrill of the creative process and to deepen and discover their own creativity,” he added.

Basquiat was born Dec. 22, 1960, in Brooklyn and died Aug. 12, 1988, at his art studio at 57 Great Jones Street. He is buried in Brooklyn's Green-Wood Cemetery.

Suspect arrested in baseball-bat bludgeoning of homeless men in Los Angeles

Ramon Escobar is also wanted in connection with the disappearance of a Houston couple.

A man has been arrested on suspicion of bludgeoning several homeless men with a baseball bat, two of them fatally, in a series of attacks this month in downtown Los Angeles and the adjacent beachfront city of Santa Monica, police said on Tuesday.

Ramon Escobar, 47, who the Los Angeles Times reported is also wanted for questioning in the disappearance of an aunt and uncle in Houston, Texas, was arrested on Monday in Santa Monica after he allegedly beat a homeless man unconscious there, police said.

Escobar was jailed in Santa Monica on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon. He also faces two counts of murder and one count of attempted murder stemming from the beatings of three other homeless men with a baseball bat while they slept on Sept. 16 in the financial district of Los Angeles, according to Los Angeles Police Department spokesman Mike Lopez.

Two of those victims died four days later. The third was hospitalized in critical condition, police said. The Santa Monica victim suffered blunt-force trauma injuries to his head, according to police, but the weapon used was not specified.

The LAPD and Santa Monica police planned to furnish additional details at a news briefing in Los Angeles later on Tuesday.

At a news conference last week, LAPD Captain William Hayes said the suspect was caught on surveillance video rummaging through the victims' belongings in search of valuable items before leaving the scene.

Santa Monica police were also investigating whether Escobar was involved in the fatal bludgeoning of another man found dead under the city pier on Sept. 20, they said on Monday. Relatives of that victim have said the man was not homeless but often slept on the beach after overnight fishing trips, according to the Los Angeles Times.

Houston Police Lieutenant Humberto Lopez told the Times that Escobar's uncle and aunt, Rogelio and Dina Escobar, had been missing since August. Police found the charred remains of Dina Escobar's van days after they disappeared, the newspaper said. REUTERS

GETTING CAUGHT UP SPENDING TOO MUCH ON CHRISTMAS PRESENTS!

My grumble is for families who are struggling to pay bills as Christmas season is coming up and they go in debt spending money on things they don't even need. Instead of buying your child $150 pair of sneaker for Christmas when you know utilities bills and rent are due, you can buy him a less expensive pair. We are not keeping up with the Joneses. Also, if someone asked you what you want for

the GRUMBLE

Christmas, ask them to pay one of your bills or give them a list of things you need from the grocery store. Stop trying to be someone you are not! Don't go into debt for Christmas! Maybe for Christmas, Santa might pay your rent instead of getting you that 65-inch tv? And is nothing wrong with your 40-inch TV? This is 2018, everything is expensive! But, you don't have to go broke just for Christmas. This is something to really think about.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Forward Union Fair is part art show, part Activism 101 with workshops, talks and meetings with activist groups in the five boroughs to learn how you can help.

eva.kis@metro.us

Americans across the country started protesting in January 2016 and haven't stopped since. What's emerged from these years of #resistance is a lot of art, whether it's crafts like pussyhats or the creative posters at every rally. For those looking to hone their art skills and find a way to protest at the same time, the Forward Union Fair is for you.

"We wanted to do something that took the model of an art fair but put the emphasis on all of the causes that seemed to be popping up as relevant at that moment," says Holly Shen, the director and curator of visual arts at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, co-founder of Forward Union Fair. "We want workers, and we believe in the power of art to change people to communicate and problem-solve."

Returning for a year on Sept. 29, noon-6 p.m. at K2 Arts (220 W. 18th St.), the fair is part art show — attracting some of the most provocative protest works from around the world — and part Activism 101 with two full days of workshops, talks and a "marketplace" of social justice organizations where you can invest your activist time and money.

Among the works on display are Banu Cennetoglu's "The List," a controversial memorial featuring the names of 34,000 asylum-seekers and counting who have died in Europe or while trying to get there. Artist Aram Han Sifuentes' acclaimed Protest Banner Lending Library is a workshop where attendees design and sew their own durable fabric signs. Another Protest Song: Karaoke With a Message is exactly what it sounds like, and you won't attend any political rally like Iranian-American artist Amy Khoshbin's "cathartic rap dance party," part of her campaign for Brooklyn City Council in 2022.

Once you've been inspired by the art, there's the full slate of panels with four main themes that organizers felt are the most pressing right now. There's civic engagement with Run For Something regional director Amanda Clarke; immigration, including training to accompany immigrants facing deportation to ICE check-ins with the New Sanctuary

Artist Amy Khoshbin is running for office in a unique way. PROVIDED

Coalition; health care through the proposed single-payer state-level New York Health Act; and gun violence through a workshop titled "This Is Not A Gun," led by Cara Levine, where attendees use clay to make objects that have been mistaken for guns by police officers in civilian shootings.

Make your own sign at the Protest Banner Lending Library.
ARAM HAN SIFUENTES

"Outwardly, it's a ceramics workshop, but during the process of making there's also a conversation that's facilitated by a moderator," says Shen. "So these workshops have two steps to them: the creative element and the dialogue that comes out of them."

Now that you're inspired and educated, meet with the nearly 50 nonprofit groups tabling causes at the event. While Forward Union Fair started out partnering with big, national organizations, this year's participants are focused on how you can help right here in the five boroughs, including the Brooklyn Community Bail Fund, OutSmartNYC and Make the Road New York.

There's no age limit to attend — an all-ages art-making workshop will run both days from noon-6 p.m., and the keynote speech on Saturday morning will be given by a group of teens from No Longer Empty, which advocates community engagement through art.

"We were so inspired by the teen activists who came out of the Marjory Stoneman Douglas shooting," says Shen.

"The youth are holding voters accountable for these issues that are important to them, gun restriction being the top priority among youth these days."

The fight against erectile dysfunction

Don't worry. It happens.
But there are ways to stop it!
By Pat King

Many men deal with the awkward physical disability commonly known as erectile dysfunction. As a matter of fact, it may be a more common drawback for more men than you may think. According to a study conducted by the Cleveland Clinic, roughly 52 percent of men experience erectile dysfunction in their day-to-day lives, with 40 percent of men age 40 experience it and 70 percent of men age 70. So what are some ways that you can combat this ... gulp... disappointing condition that affects so many men in the bedroom?

Eat and live right

As with many ailments, erectile dysfunction can be closely related to how much you exercise and how well you eat on a daily basis.

In a nutshell — by getting the right amount of cardio during the week, you will maintain a lower blood pressure which can help you to achieve healthier erections when it matters the most.

Eating right can also contribute to lowering your blood pressure with food like dark chocolate, pistachios, and watermelon all linked to lowering cholesterol and increasing the blood flow in the right areas. Some bad news for those who like the drink a few cocktails from time to time however is that drinking to excess has historically been linked to cases of erectile dysfunction. So try to cut back if you want to see improvements down there.

The importance of a healthy diet cannot be overstated in cases of erectile dysfunction as WebMD found. It is estimated that around "35-75% of men with diabetes will experience at least some degree of erectile dysfunction during their lifetime." On top of that, men with diabetes will develop ED 10 to 15 years before men without diabetes.

Cut out the problem at the root

While many pills and contraptions have been touted as the end all be all cures of this worrisome condition, few have produced the same exciting restorative results as the ErectionWave treatment. Created by board certified urologist, Dr. David Shusterman, this new innovative treatment has taken a different approach to this issue than, say, swallowing a couple vias on a nightly basis. The most exciting aspect of this treatment is that it actually works to cure the real issues behind ED and not offering a temporary solution. By directing high frequency rays towards blood vessels that have been blocked, ErectionWave treatment will increase blood through these pathways to allow for stronger and longer lasting natural erections without the assistance of pills or useless penis pumps.

Another more direct erectile dysfunction cure is known as the Priapus Shot — or otherwise known simply as the "P-shot". This completely pain-free shot has been known to not only increase sex drive but increase the overall penis size to 3.5 centimeters. The shot gets these results by by kickstarting a man's own growth factors in his blood to recruit his body's own stem cells down to the penis causing quicker regeneration of tissue and blood vessels.

If you are interested in either of these groundbreaking treatments, make your appointment with Dr. Shusterman today by calling 212-661-0060.

AT METROBET.USShould Yankees go with bullpen-only in AL Wild Card?

Monday night showed that starting a game with an opener can work.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The New York Yankees took a page out of the Tampa Bay Rays' playbook on Monday night when they started reliever Jonathan Holder.

Holder, who assumed the responsibility of what is now known as an opener, commenced a bullpen game against their AL East divisional rivals in Tampa as eight different pitchers threw at least one inning. Starter-turned-reliever Sonny Gray was the only arm to throw multiple innings.

low a run as the strategy worked against a red-hot Rays team that was 16-5 in their last 21 games entering Monday night.

During that span, they scored a run or less only twice.

But the Rays were stry-mied by a dose of their own medicine as they were the first to trot out closer Sergio Romo to start a game on five different occasions this season.

The constant different looks that the Yankees relievers provided did not allow the Rays offense to gain any sort of momentum.

For manager Aaron Boone, though, this was likely just a way to position his starting rotation in a way that he can get the arm he wants to start the American League Wild Card Game on Oct. 3.

While he has not indicated which starter will be given the ball against the Oakland Athletics in the postseason, Monday night should have presented the idea of going with a bullpen game in the one-game playoff.

Yankees starters haven't necessarily instilled much confidence in Boone throughout the season — especially any who could have been candidates to get the ball in such a high-pressure game like the Wild Card.

Luis Severino has struggled mightily in the second half, while C.C. Sabathia and Masahiro Tanaka have battled inconsistencies and injury. Gray, who was picked up last year for the stretch run, has completely lost his status as a starter.

At the moment, J.A. Happ is the most likely option for the Yankees against the Athletics. Acquired from the Blue Jays at the trade deadline, the veteran southpaw has been huge over the past two months with a 6-0 record and 2.34 ERA in 10 starts.

The 35-year-old only has three postseason starts in his career, though, and has never gone more than five innings. He's done his best work in relief, allowing two runs in 6.1 innings of work out of the pen.

If that kind of history worries Boone, keeping the Athletics on their toes by shuffling pitchers every inning might be a legitimate option for the Yankees in the Wild Card Game.

Mets activate David Wright

The New York Mets announced on Tuesday afternoon that they have activated third baseman and team captain David Wright from the 60-day disabled list.

Tuesday night marked the start of the final homestand of the season and Wright's final time at Citi Field in a Mets uniform. In a press conference on Sept. 13, Wright announced that this likely will be his final season in Major League Baseball after his body has been worn down by a series of neck, back and shoulder injuries.

While it is unknown if Wright will appear during this week's series against the Atlanta Braves, he will start on Saturday against the Miami Marlins.

It is expected to be his final appearance in a Mets uniform as New York's season ends the very next day, allowing both he and the fans to say farewell to one another.

Just being activated is a major accomplishment for the 35-year-old as many believed his career would be over after the slew of injuries suffered over the past three years.

Wright has appeared in just 75 regular-season games since the 2015 season and has not played in the big leagues since May 2016 as the second half of what was once expected to be a Hall-of-Fame career was robbed.

He is the franchise leader in hits, doubles, runs scored and RBI.
